Latest Happenings

Shalom and blessings to you all. I returned not too long ago from Alaska, and I have to say it is great to be back. I love me some U.S.A. but living in a jungle and a country that is practically a Tropical Rain Forest always lures me back. It is hard being away from my family but it just makes returning even sweeter.

A lot of things have transpired in the world over the past couple of years. Changes to every aspect of our life that we probably didn't imagine. Many times we tend to focus on all the negative things because those are the things that usually bring us pain and affects us the most. At the end of the day it is still 100% clear that the Creator of the Universe remains Sovereign and is still on His throne.

While in Alaska I had the privilege to meet up with Teresa Casalino and her husband. I first met Teresa at a Revive Conference in Dallas, but some of you may remember Teresa from a program on Hebrew Nation Radio called Cuppa Shebrews. I was interviewed several times on that program and really enjoyed it. Teresa contacted me to see if I was going to be in Alaska and it just so happened that for a few days they were going to be where I was at. It's not everyday you get a crash course on commercial salmon seining, but they really enjoyed it and it was great to catch up.

As most of you have seen I've pretty much stopped posting on the ministry social media page. I pretty much am not on Facebook much at all other than sharing a Babylon Bee meme here and there. That doesn't mean that we stopped doing ministry as some probably have thought since I didn't take the time to explain. When the Wuhan virus came it changed a lot of things that we were a part of ministry wise.

I decided a few days ago to go check out some ministry pages that I haven't visited in a while. I wasn't shocked to find not much has changed on social media since my absence. The topic I was looking at was about Israel and recent news about the red heifers. Needless to say it was a lot of folks fighting and arguing over this and that. I don't think I've missed out on very much.

I started a new project a few years back and we are seeing a lot of fruit being produced from it. If you guys remember several years back there was an Association that I founded of Torah based fellowships here in Costa Rica. We came together under the umbrella of doing ministry while promoting unity. We closed the association after four years, if I recall correctly, because many of the leaders told me they didn't want the responsibility anymore. At that time this was a big part of the ministry that I was doing. I was traveling over 4 hours one way to get to where these fellowships were located and it took a lot of my time and to this day I have no complaints or regrets about that. Once that project finished and after spending a lot of time in prayer, YHVH gave me an idea of how I could 'live' the commandments with those around me without them necessarily believing the same as me or doing everything exactly the way that I do it. So that project is what I would like to write about this month. Blessings and shalom to you all.

The ministry project that I would like to share with you all is similar to the cacao or chocolate project that I've been a part of. This project is based on executing justice and righteousness. I've written extensively about this subject in the past. What I will say about justice and righteousness is that it is very dear to the Creator. It is the foundation of what His Constitution, the Torah, was and to this day is still based upon. Y'shua came and exemplified this concept from the beginning to the end of His ministry. You and I have been left with big shoes to fill and we can do it. We are even commanded to do it.

"He has told you, O man, what is good: and what does Elohim require of you but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with YHVH?" Micah 6:8

Stay with me for a minute as I set the stage. In 2011 my family and I moved to our farm. We moved a day before the biblical feast of Trumpets. The reason why was to be able to make a proclamation over our farm which is a tradition at the celebration of the Feast of Trumpets. I named our farm Beit Lechem because that means house of bread and in scripture there are many instances where bread has the meaning of life or something that sustains life. My vision for our farm was for it to be a light on the hill that would bring forth bountiful blessings for others to partake of. It has been that and even more than I possibly imagined.

Years ago I was able to buy a group of heifer calves and my journey as a cattle farmer started. Little did I know at that time YHVH had even bigger plans with Beit Lechem and cows. The cows increased on my farm after a few years and one day my oldest son, Jachin Tobiah, came to me and said Dad I had a dream that our farm was full of red cows. I didn't write it off because YHVH clearly speaks to us through our dreams, but I honestly didn't ponder to long about it at the time because all my animals were Brahmans that were white as snow.

It was three years after my son's dream that the first red animals, Beefmasters, came to our farm. It was only 8 cows, but the day they arrived, which was on my birthday, my son's dream came right back into my mind as if he had just told me. I knew then that YHVH was up to something bigger than I had understood. I didn't have a bull at the time so I decided to go take a university class on artificial insemination. That was one of the best decisions I've made in my life. Now how did I start out talking about justice and righteousness and now it's about artificial insemination? I know it may sound strange. I only wanted to A.I. on my farm, but the class set the stage for what I've been doing the past two years with many people. I never would have known the people that I've crossed paths with due to learning how to artificial inseminate cows.

Now onto the good part. This project has allowed me to witness and share the gospel with people who weren't believers. It has allowed me to minister to people in need through prayer and giving counsel, but one of the most important aspects of this project is the economical and social impact on our community. We live in the poorest province in Costa Rica and our area doesn't offer much employment other than the Dole banana plantation. The Beefmaster breed is a new breed to our area because here in Costa Rica the Brahman breed is king. With the artificial insemination project, I'm using the Beefmaster breed (red in color) to cross with my customers Brahman cows. This cross is producing an animal that is not only 50-60% heavier but is reaching that percentage 2 to 3 months quicker than other breeds here in Costa Rica. This equates to more profit for the producer in less time.

Many of my Costa Rican friends tell me I'm a pioneer because of the impact that our project is having. I always stop them and explain that it is all YHWH. He gave the idea and plan. My role is to execute it being honest, fair, and having integrity with my clients. The positive impact has been tremendous for cattlemen and their families economically and spiritually. It has even helped a few farms from going out of business because now their farms have become profitable again. Most importantly it has forged relationships with others where I'm able to minister to my clients and be a part of brining "life" while executing justice and righteousness. While it is a business, we are a business doing ministry and not a ministry doing business. Shalom and blessings.
